

aberrant

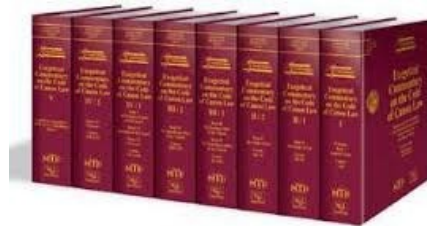

(adj.) deviating from the norm
(Noun form: aberration)

abscond

(verb) To steal off and hide canonical

(adj.) following or in agreement with accepted traditional standards (noun form: canon)

Capricious

(adj.) Inclined to change one's mind compulsively; erratic, unpredictable

Disabuse

disabuse

He thinks that all women adore him, but my sister will probably disabuse him of that idea.

(verb) to undeceive; to set right To free someone of a misconception

discordant

Conflicting; dissonant or harsh in sound

Sentence: The frightened cat gave a discordant shriek and jumped on the table.

effrontery

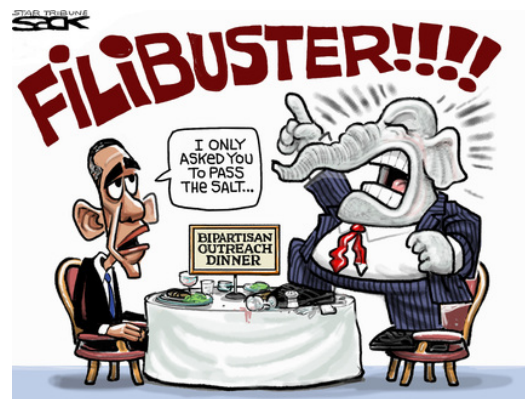

(noun) extreme boldness;
presumptuousness

eloquent

(adj) well-spoken, expressive, articulate (noun form: eloquence)

filibuster

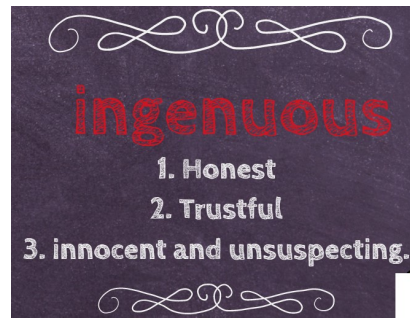

(noun) intentional obstruction, esp. using prolonged speechmaking to delay legislative action

fulminate

(verb) to loudly attack or denounce

ingenuous

(adj.) artless; frank and candid;
lacking in sophistication inured

(adj.) accustomed to accepting something undesirable