

precipitate
(adj.)

If you decide to throw your class project in a trash masher just because someone in your class had a similar idea, then your actions might be described as precipitate.

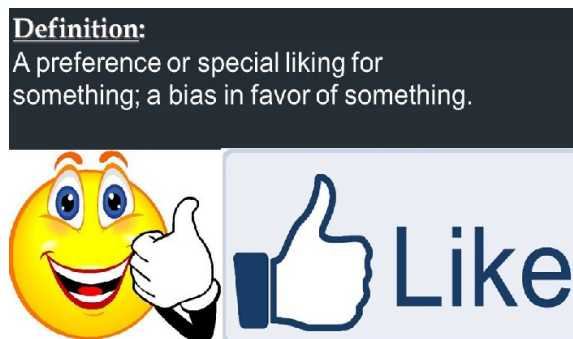

(adj.) acting with excessive haste or impulse

precipitate
(verb)

(verb) to cause to happen before anticipated or required

predilection

(noun) a disposition in favor of something, preference

prescience

(noun) foreknowledge of events; knowing of events prior to their occurring

(adj. form: prescient)

prevaricate

(verb) To deliberately avoid the truth; to mislead

abate

(verb) to lessen in intensity or degree

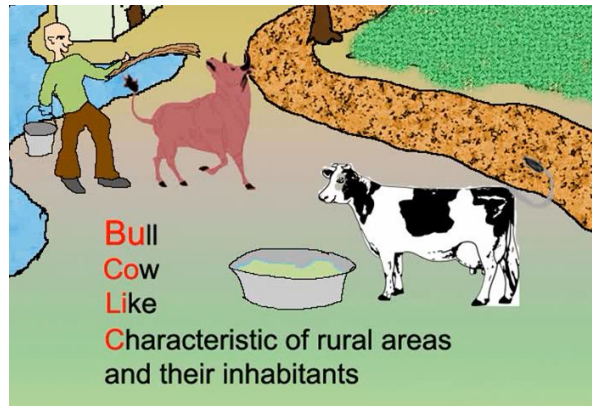

accolade

ACCOLADE

(noun) An expression of praise

bucolic

(adj) rustic and pastoral; characteristic of rural areas and their inhabitants

burgeon

(verb) to grow rapidly or flourish

cacophony

"phone" means sound

Euphony = pleasant sounds

cacophony = horrible sounds

The sounds of construction is cacophony.

(noun) harsh, jarring, discordant, or meaningless mixture of sounds

canon

(noun) an established set of principles or code of laws, often religious in nature

castigation

(noun) severe criticism or punishment (verb) castigate